My name is Allison Durham, and I live in Cleveland Park with my husband and our two young children. We've been in the neighborhood for over 6 years now, and it's become home in every sense of the word.

I wanted to write in support of Rock Creek Club. We have been looking for a neighborhood gathering place (that's not a formal/fancy country club) for quite some time and are so excited about the potential RCC has to provide that for us. Given that we're in the neighborhood, we plan to join and will get there mostly on foot or by bike, and I know many neighbors will do the same.

Honestly, what excites me most about RCC is how rare it is to have a space like this so close to home. Having something like this right in our back yard — open to anyone who wants to join — feels like a real gift to the community. Community and access to nature are two things I care about deeply, and it's hard to find a project that brings both together as naturally as this one does.

I think RCC has the potential to become a true gathering place — somewhere people can be social, active, and outdoors without having to drive out of the city to find it. I'm genuinely excited for what it could mean for my family and for our neighbors.

Thank you for considering this.

Warmly,

Allison Durham
