

O. OLOWOFOYEKU'S TESTIMONY & ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

My name and address has already been filed in the initial appeal as a joint appellant with ANC1C.

All through out this case the property owner's team has tried to suppress relevant information or evidence from being heard in this appeal process or tried tricks to prevent the joint appellants from having access or enough time to review information.

I may be a lay man in legal jargon or in how the BZA Appeal process works, but I insist that all the Information I provided in this case should be heard. I am a 20 Lanier Heights resident and 10 years a home owner on Ontario place.

At the last November BZA hearing, I Olowofoyeku spoke on behalf of the residents of Ontario place. You will remember my speech, I speak on behalf of the majority who have lived here, some for up to 50 years, whose voices are never heard but end up suffering when decisions affecting their homes are made.

I have filed my documents which relate to Zoning issues and original DC Regulations created by President Washington pertaining to adjoining party walls whose sanctity the proprietors team is trying to subvert hiding under legal jargon. The creator of Washington DC regulated that adjoining party walls belong to both lots, with both parties having easement rights over the part of the wall not on their lot. All building permits forbid you from touching the wall. It is part of the first laws and regulations in Washington DC.

Additionally nowhere in the builder's permit does it sanction the builder to shave, break, injure or remove any wall bricks.

These were additions after the fact, even the DCRA director who signed the permit categorically states the builder never mentioned this fact when seeking the permit. The permit must be denied as the builder intends to do additional works that have not been agreed to and are not listed on the permit. The builder clearly plans to break DC's building regulations just as he did before.
