Overview of Existing Programmatic Relationship

The following provides an overview of the existing programmatic relationship between the School Without Walls and The George Washington University.

Courses

SWW students are annually permitted to enroll in 100 GW courses, with waiver of tuition and fees. SWW faculty and staff are eligible to take courses to the extent not used by students.

Facilities Use

- SWW use of GW facilities, including:
 - Gelman Library – independent study by SWW students, faculty and staff and collaboration between Gelman Library staff and SWW Library staff
 - Marvin Center – special event space
 - Lisner Auditorium – graduation activities
 - GW classrooms – advanced placement testing
 - Fungler Hall – receptions and admissions testing
 - Media and Public Affairs – Home School Association annual fundraiser
- GW use of SWW classrooms in evening
- SWW use of athletic facilities for physical education courses and school athletics (on a space available basis)

Academic Collaborations

- GW Graduate School of Education and Human Development – provides support for 13 SWW teachers seeking National Board Certification
- Gilder Lehrman Program – fosters high school/university collaboration on an interdisciplinary approach to history and humanities for SWW students
- Capital Educators Partnership/Holmes Partnership – representatives from 11 school districts, national organizations, GW's Graduate School of Education and SWW with the goal of working together to enhance teaching and learning

Teaching Collaborations

- GW faculty and staff serve as guest lecturers at SWW
- GW faculty and GW graduate students teach SWW students certain electives

GW Student Internships and Services

- GSEHD graduate students serve as interns at SWW in the areas of science, social studies, special education and counseling
- GW undergraduate and graduate students serve as tutors for SWW students
- SWW students intern at the GW student newspaper (the Hatchet), the Marvin Center and the Smith Center

Other Programs

- Trachtenberg Scholarships – annual scholarship for high achieving DCPS students (12 of 84 Trachtenberg Scholarship recipients have been SWW students)
- Counseling Services – SWW students and families are referred to the GW Counseling Center at reduced rates
- GW art therapist – offers services to SWW students with learning disabilities
- GW representatives have served on the SWW Local School Restructuring Team as community representatives
- Donation of GW computers to SWW
- Sharing of educational resource materials from Eisenhower National Clearinghouse
