1. Proposal Summary

Nomis Youth Network Inc., proposes to mange a state of the art Sport Training Facility to serve citizens in Ward 6 and the Metropolitan Washington community at large. The facility will be managed and operated by Nomis Youth Network Inc. The facility will be located in Washington D.C. The Sports Training Facility will be located on property owned by Arman Brick.

Presently in Washington D.C., there is no such facility but definitely there is a need for one as the social climate suggests. Also, presently in Washington D.C. there is no facility available to youth that provides intense sport specific training such as boxing and gymnastics as well as traditional therapeutic recreational activities, competition sports, and enrichment activities. The majority of sports specific training facilities exist outside of Washington, D.C. Those that do not, such as in the case of boxing usually cater to professional athletes or clients that can afford expensive prices, or the facilities are in need of renovation, and are too small. As such, aspiring youth who cannot afford the cost of training or manage the commute to the far suburbs are denied opportunities that may otherwise exist. Suffice it to say that many youth in Washington D.C. are denied opportunities to train for amateur sports ultimate dream of competing in the Olympics.

The focus of the Sport Training Facility will be to engage youth and adults in non-traditional and traditional experiences and to impact people in meaningful and productive ways that can manifest empowerment and serve as a catalyst to resiliency, as well as to impact adults, families and the overall community in positive ways. In addition, the Sport Training Facility will provide sports training intended to improve the functioning of youth, adults, and families.

Ultimately the facility will be instrumental in reviving the spirit of many youth and families, and serve as a national model to be duplicated throughout the United States. As such Nomis Youth Network Inc., proposes to manage a Sports Training Facility on property located at 518 10th Street N.E., presently known as Finley's Boxing Club.
