Dear Chairman Griffis,

I am writing in support of NCRC's project to improve the school. I am an NCRC alumna, as well as a current NCRC parent and a neighbor. My two sons walk to NCRC for school and camp.

I grew up and went to school in Cleveland Park, and when I returned to Washington NCRC is one of the things that drew me back to this neighborhood. My husband and I work full time and our nanny does not drive, so being within walking distance to the school was an important part of why we chose to buy our house. Not only is NCRC a wonderful school for our family, but like so many neighbors, we also use the playground on the weekends and after school.

We chose NCRC not simply because of its proximity, but also because we believe in the school's mission. It focuses on the needs of each individual child, and it also brings together a unique mix of families from different racial, socioeconomic backgrounds, as well as a mixture of children with special needs and typically developing children. NCRC's success at integrating these children is very special and for that we are grateful that our children can experience the school.

We have been impressed with NCRC's plans for improving the current facility. Anyone who has spent time at the school can see its need for more space. There is no place to meet privately with staff members and the only indoor place where our children can work on their gross motor skills is a relatively small room that has glass doors taking up one wall, and library shelves around all the rest of the walls. When you get sixteen four-year-olds in there, throwing balls, hopping, and running, it is clear that the program needs more space.

Finally, since there are at least two children with special needs in each classroom, I feel strongly that reducing the numbers of children in each class makes sense. In order to accomplish this and not bring down the size of the current population, the school proposes adding two new classrooms. I think these new classrooms will be beneficial to the program and not simply because they will allow a reduction of the current class sizes. Having these two new classrooms, which are slated to be full-day programs-one for older children and one for younger children-will also offer much more flexibility for working parents who need a longer day for their kids.

I admire what NCRC has done in response to neighborhood concerns. After receiving input at more than a dozen neighborhood meetings, the school has cut back the size of the proposed new building significantly. NCRC has already begun to make changes in its traffic management plan, and I firmly believe that the school's commitment to mitigating any traffic problems is real. As a neighbor, a parent, and an alumna, I firmly support the school and hope you will also support its efforts.

Sincerely,

Anne Large
