Milton Shinberg has been in practice as a registered architect since 1975, following graduation from Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh and work with the nationally noted firm of Arthur Cotton Moore + Associates. His projects, renderings and articles have appeared in local and national publications.

He is principal in the firm of Shinberg.Levinas LLC, together with Salo Levinas. Their work has been featured in a variety of publications. The firm's recent and current projects include sites in the Washington metropolitan area, Baltimore, Chicago, Boca Raton, and Springfield, Missouri. The Dance Institute, part of the Columbia Heights Redevelopment, is currently in design.

In addition to many commercial and residential projects, Mr. Shinberg's practice has included numerous institutional projects, among them religious facilities and schools. He participated as an urban school expert in the Second Ward planning group in Charlotte, NC, and was recently a presenter at the Department of Education National Charter School Conference in Milwaukee.

Shinberg's major renovation projects include the M.A. Winter Building, the Lofts at Logan Circle (AIA Preservation Award), the Morgan Annex and many religious facilities. He has made presentations before the United States Commission of Fine Arts and the Architect of the Capitol, the Washington DC Board of Zoning Adjustment and Zoning Commission, and the Montgomery Board of Appeals.

Shinberg received an AIA Journal Juried Award, and has earned excellent reviews in The Washington Post and Dossier (for his offices), and The New York Times. He has been recipient of design awards for the M.A. Winter Building, the Lofts at Logan Circle, the Logan Lofts and, most recently, the Chicago Botanical Gardens (AIA Award). While at Carnegie-Mellon University, he received the PPG Foundation Traveling Fellowship and was elected by the faculty to the national architectural honorary society, Alpha Rho Chai.

In addition to architectural registration in several states, Shinberg holds the certificate of the National Council of Architectural of Architectural Registration Boards (NCARB), which provides access to registration in most other states. He has held adjunct status at the CUA School of Architecture for over 20 years, teaching a wide range of courses from design to technology.

Shinberg has presented on various topics at several conferences and has lectured in the Architecture in the 21st Century series at the Smithsonian. His writing has been published in the Design Management Journal (regarding the Pennsylvania Avenue redevelopment), Breaking Traditions: Work Alternatives for Lawyers (conceptual space use), and contributions to Advanced Masonry.

He has provided pro bono support to community groups in Dupont Circle, Sheridan-Kalorama, Logan Circle, Capitol Hill and Shaw, and has testified in the creation of the Chanceries/Foreign Missions Act, and the Historic Preservation Act in Washington, DC.
