JOSEPH HANDWERGER ARCHITECT

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Founder and Principal 1975-present
Joseph Handwerger Architects, Washington, D.C.

Joseph Handwerger Architects provides architectural and planning services to a diverse range of Federal government, non-profit, commercial and individual clients. The firm's work has included new construction, renovation, adaptive reuse and a wide range of building types. Design of U.S. Embassies has been a major focus of the firm's work with more than 20 projects worldwide successfully completed. Office uses and housing in low-and-mid-rise structures have also been significant components of the firm's work. A list of representative projects is attached.

Vice President, Director of Development 1973-1975
Columbia Association, Columbia, M.D.

The Columbia Association is a non-profit organization responsible for developing and managing a wide range of community service programs and facilities in the new town of Columbia, Maryland. As director of development, I collaborated in planning new development, developed programs and budgets for capital projects, and negotiated and managed contracts with architects, engineers and contractors to implement construction.
