

As a frequent customer of City Corner I am in full support of their pursuance of a license to vend beer and wine. The business managers are kind, responsible members of the community that will respect the responsibility that comes with vending alcohol. In their vending of tobacco and lottery products the business managers are diligent about checking identification for all purchasers. I've spoken at some length on this topic with the business managers and they are committed to keeping the community a safe place to enjoy alcohol responsibly among adults. Additionally, the managers of City Corner are absolutely committed to the success of our community. When the District received almost 30 inches of snow they opened their doors to sell the necessary provisions when other grocery stores were not able to open. The managers always keep their sidewalks clear and safe, even when there is snow or ice. The managers have also had to endure the periodic hardship of theft and break-ins, yet still have been a welcoming presence in the neighborhood. City Corner and its management is not only a vendor of needed supplies, but they're also valued members of our community. I believe that the business should be given the opportunity to sell beer and wine.
