ZONING COMMISSION FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

FOR THE PURPOSE OF CONSIDERING THE FOLLOWING:

CASE NO. 00-27 (Zoning Map Amendment – Square 37, Lots 810, 811, 831, 836, 837, and 855)

THIS CASE IS OF INTEREST TO ANC 2A

The Zoning Commission of the District of Columbia hereby gives notice that it will conduct a public hearing at the above-stated date, time, and place to receive comments concerning review and approval of a Zoning Map Amendment under Chapter 30 of the District of Columbia Zoning Regulations, 11 DCMR (July 1995, as amended). The proposed map amendment would change the base zone district for the subject properties from their present R-5-B classification to R-5-E, C-2-C, or CR

The District of Columbia Administrative Procedures Act, DC Code 2-505, provides that this Notice also means that the Commission can consider not just rezoning to the three stated alternatives but may also apply other zone district classifications that are more permissive than the present R-5-B zone but that are more restrictive than either the referenced C-2-C (such as C-2-B) or the referenced R-5-E (such as R-5-D), for some or all of the land area involved. The Commission is not obligated to find a single base zone to apply to all of the land.

The petitioner is asking the Zoning Commission to effect a Map Amendment to the southern portion of Square 37 (land lying south of that Square's single, east-west public alley; specifically applying to Lots 810, 811, 812, 831, 836, and 855, to resolve an inconsistency among the principles of the Comprehensive Plan, present zoning, and D.C. Code.

In short, the Comprehensive Plan and its associated Generalized Land Use Map call for the area to be for a mixture of high-density residential uses along with medium-density commercial uses.

In contrast, the present R-5-B zoning classification provides for "moderate density" residential uses at "moderate" heights. All R-5 zones permit apartment houses (technically, "multiple dwellings"), flats and one-family dwellings, along with hospitals, clinics, and museums, as a matter of right. Density is limited to a Floor Area Ratio ("FAR") of 1.8. FAR is the ratio of the "gross floor area" to the area of the land. Gross floor area excludes "cellar" areas but includes the horizontal area of "basements" (whose ceiling extends four feet or more above the adjacent grade) and the horizontal area of all floors from the ground up other than a penthouse, which contains stairways, elevator and other mechanical equipment. In the R-5-B zone, height is limited to 50 feet, with an additional allowance for a penthouse. Colleges and universities, along with art galleries, are among uses allowed after an owner seeks and secures the approval of the Board of Zoning Adjustment ("BZA") under the BZA's Special Exception process.

As summarized within the present District of Columbia Comprehensive Plan (at §112.3) "... zoning may not be inconsistent with the Comprehensive Plan..." Thus, present zoning does not comport with the broad principles established by the Plan, particularly its land use element.

The zone district alternatives to be considered include the following:

R-5-E The R-5-E zone exists to allow compact, high-rise residential development that may extend to a height of 90 feet and provides the highest allowed purely residential density in the District of Columbia's zoning program, namely an FAR of 6.0. This zone district, as with R-5-B, R-5-C, and R-5-D, permit apartment houses (technically, "multiple dwellings"), flats and one-family dwellings, along with hospitals, clinics, and museums, as a matter of right. Colleges and universities, along with art galleries, are among uses allowed with the approval of the BZA under that Board's Special Exception procedures. The R-5-E zone limits FAR of new uses other than apartment houses to 5.0.

C-2-C The C-2-C zone exists to provide for a mix of residential and commercial uses at the same density (FAR of 6.0) and height limits (90 foot) as R-5-E; areas so-zoned are to be "compact" and "located near the Central Employment Area." While overall development is limited to an FAR of 6.0, any development exceeding an FAR of 2.0 must be used for an apartment house or "other residential" use, which includes "guest room" areas of hotels and areas supporting these guest rooms. Uses allowed within the FAR limit of 6.0 include all uses allowed in the R-5 zones as a matter of right. General offices and a wide range of retail and other uses may utilize up to a limit of 2.0 FAR within the overall FAR limit of 6.0. The zone also allows international organizations, theatres and assembly halls, parking lots and parking garages, colleges, universities, and other academic institutions of higher learning, as a matter of right.

CR The CR zone allows the same total density in terms of FAR as both R-5-E and C-2-C, namely 6.0, and also limits development to 90 feet. Just as in C-2-C, the CR zone's rules interpret "guest room" and related service areas of hotels as "residential" space under the prevailing FAR limits. While C-2-C allows an FAR of 2.0 to be devoted to non-residential uses within the overall FAR limit of 6.0, CR allows non-residential uses to utilize an FAR of as much as 3.0. CR zones allow a range of commercial uses similar to those in C-2-C; it also prohibits certain uses allowed in C-2-C and other Commercial zones, including "parking lots" and "drive-through" establishments. Moreover, some uses allowed as a matter of right in the C-2 districts require approval in CR from the BZA, including hospitals, clinics, colleges and universities. The BZA may also allow a few light industrial uses such as warehouses and vehicle sales. The CR zone requires that developed properties provide "public space" at the ground level amounting to ten percent of the total area of the lot that is (a) adjacent to the property's main entrance, (b) open to the sky or have a minimum clearance of 10 feet or one story, (c) have ample illumination and appropriate landscaping, and (d) be continuously open to the general public.

The C-2-C zone, Commercial zones more restrictive than C-2-C, and the CR zone all require those developing residential uses to provide "residential recreation space." For C-2-C and CR, the space must be the equivalent to 15 percent of the gross floor area devoted to multiple dwellings, i.e., apartments and their supporting space such as lobbies and hallways. Of this, at least half that area must be "outdoors" in the Commercial zones and at least 70 percent must be "open to the sky" in CR districts.

Proposed amendments to the Zoning Regulations and Map of the District of Columbia are authorized pursuant to the Zoning Act of 1938, approved June 20, 1938 (52 Stat. 797; D.C. Official Code § 6-641.01 et seq.) (2001 Ed.).
