Dear Commissioners:

As a 47-year resident of SW (@520 N St) I have seen many changes come to our neighborhood. One of the biggest headaches continues to get worse – and that is the safety of pedestrians and the ever increasing volume of traffic.

Now, in connection with Forest City’s proposals for M street @ 4th, I understand that a long-promised Safety Plan for the 4th and M intersection has not yet been launched. Two of my neighbors in this building have already been injured at this intersection. Given the proximity of the Metro, the huge DC government building presence, the only grocery store around, and thousands of residents within yards of this intersection, studying and trying to resolve the very real dangers there seems like a “no brainer.” And certainly before more new construction is approved. Why are we waiting?

Respectfully,

Christine Godson
