VIEWS OF FRANCIS GREGORY VICINITY and PEDESTRIAN SAFETY CONDITIONS

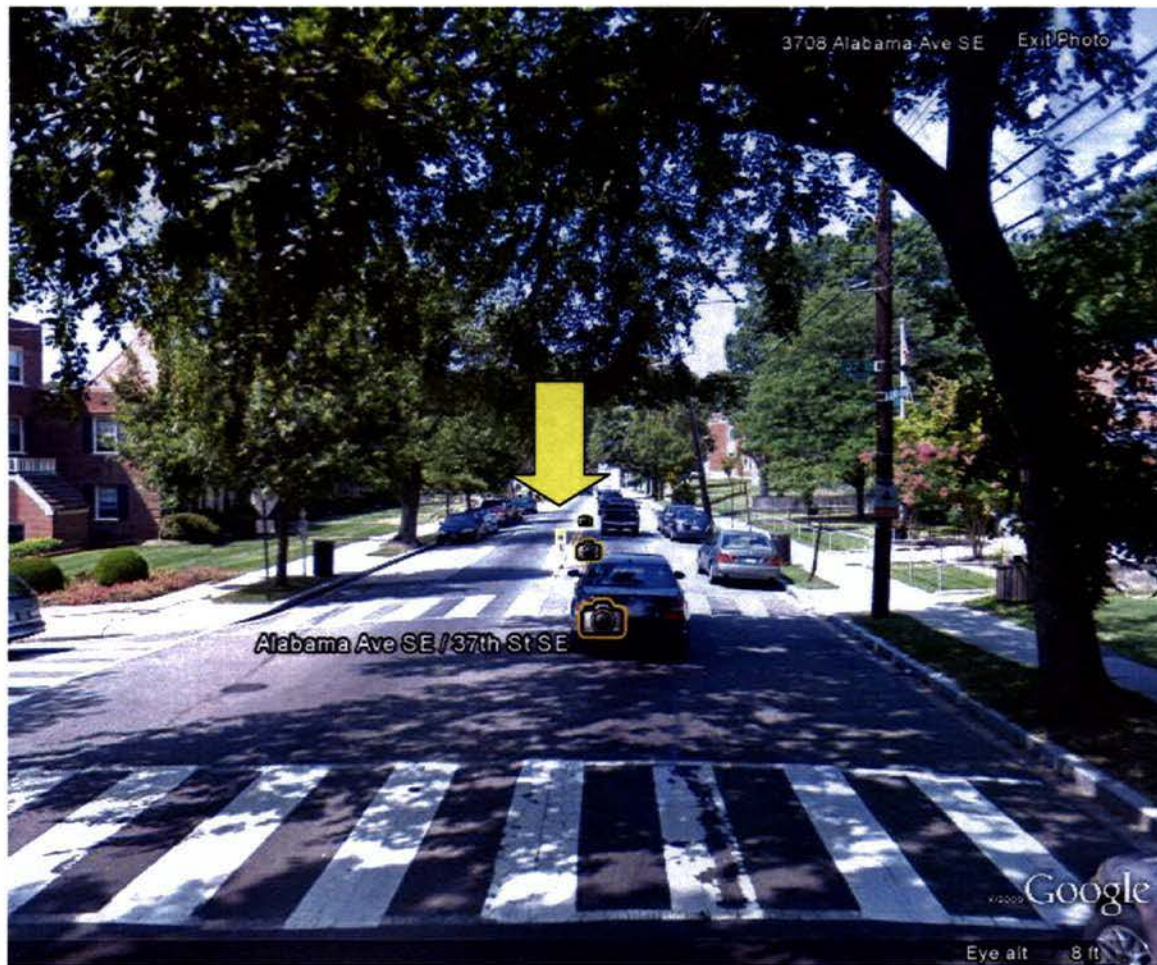

The views that follow illustrate the favorable conditions for pedestrian safety in the vicinity of Francis Gregory Library: a traffic signal at the main intersection by the elementary school, within a block of the library (in the direction where children are most likely to be coming from); clear views of pedestrian crossings for motorists; signage indicating 15 mile per hour school zone with flashing lights during school hours on both sides of the library; and additional mid-street reminders to stop for pedestrians.

As is evident from the aerial view, Alabama Avenue is straight in the vicinity of the Library, providing good visibility for drivers in either direction. There is one lane of traffic in each direction, with a parking lane on each side.

Signage and flashing lights notify drivers long before they reach the library coming (under yellow arrow) coming from the direction of Pennsylvania Avenue that the speed is 15 miles per hour during school hours.

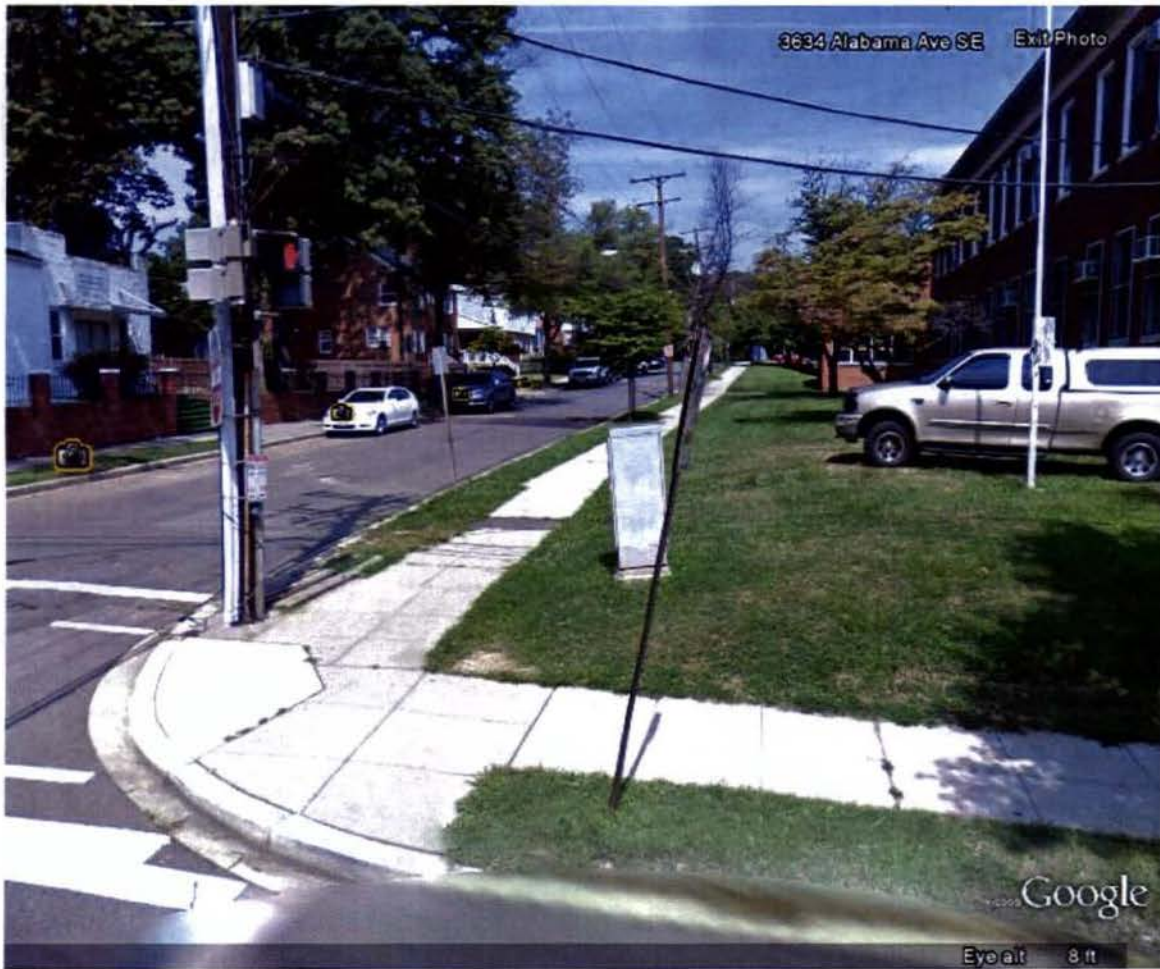

Crosswalks at 37th Street by the Library are well marked, both by visible striping and by reflective signs warning drivers that the law requires them to stop for pedestrians in the crosswalk.

Drivers have a clear view of pedestrian cross-walks. (North-bound)

Arrow shows signalized pedestrian crossing / traffic light, at the corner of 36th and Alabama, by the elementary school, which provides a safe crossing for pedestrians, and acts to slow traffic.

Additional space is available for parking during non-school hours on 36th Street, in addition to spaces on Alabama Avenue.
