Zoning Act of 1938

Zoning Commission - The next major legislative step was the Zoning Act of 1938. The Zoning Enabling Act established the police power of the Zoning Commission to regulate the height and bulk, lot occupancy of buildings, location of uses, and to divide the Districts into zoned districts. Commissioners were empowered to promulgate regulations in accordance with a Comprehensive Plan designed to lessen congestion in the street; secure safety from fire, panic; promote health and general welfare; provide adequate light and air; prevent undue concentration of population and overcrowding of land; advance health, safety, transportation, prosperity, civic activity; provide protection of property, and further economy and efficiency in provision of public services.
