Hi there,

I would like to raise my voice to these new Zoning changes due to Pop up Hype. I have developed many homes and condos in DC and am very surprised to see this change.

Development is needed in DC and the no of housing units will change drastically if the Zoning changes R to b implemented. Developers are the source of Housing Fuel in DC and I believe these changes in the long term will cut down development in DC.

At the minimum the projects in the pipe line should b given immunity from these changes and future these changes should only be implied on future submittals.

Hoping for positives in Zoning rules and Regulations.
