Dear Zoning Commission,

Please so not raise the height requirement or the density along the commercial corridor on Connecticut Avenue in Cleveland Park. The streetscape is a friendly, human-sized few blocks now. If heights are raised, we will face a more anonymous aspect, even if you use the current facades to make a Disney-fied street. We will have lost a sense of place. The historic district has saved us from looking like Wisconsin and Van Ness. There will be no sense of our unique space, just a dull, high-rise urban space like thousands of others. A sense of belonging will be gone, even if developers make a lot of money.

Sincerely,
Mary Jane Glass
