RE: Case #86-26

Dear Mr. Williams:

Cleveland Park is a special and unique part of Washington, D.C. It starts with the people who live here and continues with the historic feel of the low-rise commercial areas. I am new to this area from growth-crazy Southern California. I love this area and would hate to see this charming community devoured by the addition of a 10-story office complex. I believe that this community would be transformed into a continuous traffic and parking nightmare, not unlike the gunslinging freeways of Southern California. In my 6-months of living here, I have been impressed by the residents of Cleveland Park most notably when they took on Safeway (which ironically enough is a California-based company). It was my impression that they made life pretty miserable for those folks, at least for a little while. In conclusion Mr. Williams, we the people of Cleveland Park do not want to see a giant office complex built in this part of the city and if there is any thing that you can do to help us we would be most grateful.

Sincerely,

Bradley C. Way
