To whom it may concern --

I'm a resident of 1443 Clifton St NW, Washington, DC (at this address for three years, around the corner on University Place for 14 years and in DC for 30+ years)

I was very happy to learn about the supportive housing going up on the corner of 14th and Clifton -- we have enough condos and luxury rentals in DC -- but have since come to realize that only a portion of the project will be supportive housing and that the city is further compromising its own setback rules and ignoring how the snow load will affect its neighbors.

It's great that you're funding a project like this. However, DC government ought to be a good neighbor and follow its own rules.

Thanks,
Yael Flusberg
