

Dear Zoning Officials,

The DC Auditor has sent a public letter to the City Council about the McMillan deal and the lack of competition saying the project deserves a re-bid.

City officials who are pushing this terrible public land giveaway want to ignore the Auditor's letter. The Zoning Commission cannot.

Competition will bring us more planned and refined project which seeks to sustain the environment and adaptively re-use this public space without significant destruction of this landmarked site.

Instead, a competitive re-bid would bring us towards the same exciting historic preservation projects that New York, Chicago, and Seattle now celebrate.

Please take a stand for ethics and the environment by asking the vote be delayed until the independent Auditor's letter is responded to by the Mayor.

Further, there are other investigations and court cases that seek remedies to this project which is running off the rails.

So, until at which time the Mayor responds to the Auditor's letter and the other judicial and administrative reviews are exhausted, the Zoning Commission must either vote no, or not take a vote in ZC Case 13-14A.

Respectfully,
